

Journal of Corporate Finance & Real Options Conference

Dual review process and dual submission rules for submitting authors

1. You must first submit your paper for consideration to the Annual International Real Options Conference using the conference website (www.realoptions.org). You must indicate with your submission to the conference (by ticking the appropriate box) that you wish your paper to be considered by the Journal of Corporate Finance under the dual review process. The deadline for submission to the conference is February 1, 2019.
2. Dual submissions will first be screened by the conference program review committee and an editor of the Journal of Corporate Finance before they can be submitted to the Journal.
3. The corresponding author of papers that pass the screening test will be notified no later than two months after the conference submission deadline, and will be invited by an editor of the Journal to submit their paper to the Journal of Corporate Finance using the journal's regular submission system (<https://www.journals.elsevier.com/journal-of-corporate-finance/>). (No reviews need be provided as a result of the screening test.) Submission to the Journal of Corporate Finance should take place within three months of being notified by the Journal editor. You should indicate in your cover letter that your paper has been considered for presentation at the Annual International Real Options Conference and you have been invited to submit via the dual review process. You will be required to pay the usual non-refundable submission fee to the Journal and your paper will then be entered into the Journal's standard reviewing process. An invitation to submit the paper to the Journal does not mean that the paper will be published. An invitation to submit the paper to the Journal does, however, guarantee that your paper will not be desk rejected.
4. If you do not hear from an editor of the Journal within two months after the conference submission deadline, then you may assume that you did not pass the screening test, and you can therefore consider the dual submission process to be terminated.
5. Papers submitted for dual consideration at the Journal of Corporate Finance must not be under review at that journal as a regular submission nor at any another journal until the dual submission process ends with a notification from the sponsoring editor of the Journal of Corporate Finance. The dual submission process will be deemed to end automatically two months after the conference deadline for submissions that do not pass the screening test or do not receive an invitation by the Journal for dual submission within the two-month period. Papers cannot be submitted for dual consideration at the Journal of Corporate Finance if they are simultaneously under consideration at another journal. Papers that have already been rejected by the Journal of Corporate Finance are not eligible for the dual submission process.
6. If your paper is rejected under the dual submission process (or you do not receive a response from a Journal editor within the two-month period), then you are free to submit it, unchanged if you like and without prejudice, to the Journal of Corporate Finance via the standard submission process.
